Boil Water Alert to continue until further notice

Croydon Shire Council advises all residents in Croydon to continue to boil their tap water used for drinking until further notice following problems being experienced to the filters at the Water Treatment Plant and possible contamination affecting the Croydon water supply.

Council is working closely with Queensland Health to resolve the situation and is carrying out further testing and sampling. The boil water alert will stay in effect until the Council and Queensland Health are confident there is no longer a public health concern.

Council staff are working hard to fix the problem, your cooperation is requested until the necessary works are completed.
